

Sweet-CAD Alphanumeric Paging Interface Engine

The alphanumeric paging interface for Sweet-CAD allows Sweet-CAD to automatically send pages to crew members and vehicles based on specific actions in Sweet-CAD. This interface does not directly enable the sending of manually entered text messages.

The interface uses a paging engine from InfoRAD, Inc.

The most economical way for Ortivus to provide this engine is by providing a two-user copy of InfoRAD Wireless Enterprise SV. InfoRAD Wireless Enterprise SV provides the paging engine that the interface requires, and also provides a paging client application that can be used to send manually-entered text messages. The "two-user" license means the InfoRAD paging client software may be open on two different workstations simultaneously. This license has no effect on the ability of Sweet-CAD to send automatic pages. A two-user license is provided regardless of the number of Sweet-CAD users licensed.

Ninety days of technical support for InfoRAD Wireless Enterprise SV is provided from InfoRAD. Customers wishing to get product updates for InfoRAD Wireless Enterprise SV are encouraged to purchase software support from InfoRAD. Support of, and updates to, the InfoRAD product is not part of the Sweet-CAD support agreement.

Customers opting to implement the InfoRAD paging client software requiring more than two client licenses may purchase additional licenses directly from InfoRAD. Customers are entitled to credit for the existing two-user license when upgrading the InfoRAD license. Customers will need to provide their InfoRAD serial number to the InfoRAD sales representative to receive this credit.
